

TIPS FOR FINANCIAL LITERACY FROM JOHN HOPE BRYANT

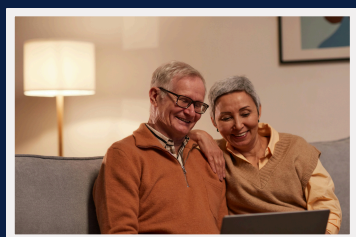

Make money during the day, and create wealth while you sleep by taking advantage of compound interest (money that grows over time).

Home ownership is the foundation of wealth. Don't listen to people who tell you it is better to rent. Most of them own the homes they live in.

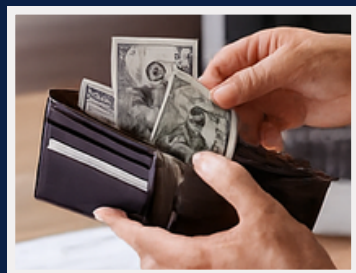

Your credit score can not only help you financially; statistics show people with higher credit scores tend to live longer due to different lifestyles.

People who live in "sub 600" credit score areas tend to live into their 60s. People with a credit score above 700 tend to live into their 80s.

Financial literacy is available to everyone. The key is your willingness to take the time to get rid of ignorance, by learning how money works.

It really does not matter how much money you make; it matters how you handle your money.
